Echoes of Activity

Various and contrasting were the sounds of '64 as were the different aspects of school life. Excitement permeated the atmosphere before the Homecoming Queen was announced. Rehearsals and performances in the plays, Variety Show, and musical occupied those with an inclination toward show business. With the numerous new clubs added to the extracurricular activities this year, every possible interest could be developed through an organization. Vigorous campaigns were conducted for club offices. Through such activities, the students became acquainted with Ardea Ozzi, our foreign exchange student from Italy. Pounding gavels signaled that meetings were in session. . .singing voices rose in unison at informal practices . . .cheers from students and teachers blended to encourage the Tomcats. . .music drifted over a dance floor. . .these were sounds of school life in 1964.

Cheers, screams, and applause were heard as the 1963 Homecoming Queen and her court paraded twice around the gymnasium.

Reigning as queen also includes receiving a dozen deep red roses and a kiss from the 1963 football captain, J. Hughes, during halftime.

noon as Jack Hughes, 1963 varsity football captain, crowned Stephanie Collins Homecoming Queen of 1963 in an all-school pep convo. She and her two attendants, Dorothy Porter and Renate Gruber, reigned supreme during halftime of the Varsity game Friday night. Stephanie, Dorothy, and Renate rode the Student Council's float with the court, Linda Heckman, Penny Kenyon, Deanna Rauscher, and Kathy Welter. Saturday night, after a sophomore victory that morning, the annual Homecoming dance was held in the cafeteria. While dancing to the music of Jim Murphy's Band, couples visited a Japanese teahouse, an African hut, and an Italian gondola which carried them to "Far Away Places."

The 1963 Homecoming Court included D. Rauscher, P. Kenyon, D. Porter, S. Collins, R. Gruber, K. Welter, and

Student Council Aids French Foster Child

The largest Student Council convention in the United States was sponsored by East High's student government organization. This Northeast-Northwest district convention was the last of its kind before the district split because of its large size. Homecoming was the fall project of Student Council and was carried through by the theme "Far Away Places." The A.F.S. program remained a vital part of the groups activities as the new school year saw the arrival of East High's second foreign exchange student. In connection with this program, the annual Senior Faculty basketball game was again held to raise money to bring another foreign student to the school. Having entered a new conference, the Up-State Eight, Student Council was concerned with the formulation of rules governing the activities of this conference. The foster child program was also maintained for another year, and gifts were sent to the needy child. Mr. Donald Hedrick was advisor to the group.

Student Council officers for 1964 were J. Willard, recording secretary; N. Eddington, Treasurer; A. Stills, vice president; D. Anderson, corresponding secretary; F. Briggs, president.

Girls' Athletic Association gained a new member when Ardea Ozzi came to East Aurora's Senior Class this year. Ardea practices a one hand set shot

Ardea Ozzi, our exchange student from Trieste, Italy, arrived at the Donald E. Vincent home on September 10. Ardie met Diana and her American family for the first time as they greeted her in Chicago. Attending Student Council meetings, cheering as a member of Pep Club, informing her friends, the student body, and the P T A about Italian life, and entering Speech Contests made Ardie's senior year in the United States a busy and rewarding experience

Mr. Lucian points at a picture of Ardea Ozzi, the former exchange student from Italy, in the Junior-Library which was held at the Hutchinson in January

Helping Ardea locate material in the reference books is her A.T.S. sister Diana Vincent. Students often found Ardea busily at work in the library

It was placed in the trophy case with his name engraved on the front. Each year another name will be added. Lettermen's Club encouraged East High lettermen to wear their letter sweaters on Fridays. Members not participating in winter sports ushered at home basketball games. They also sponsored a dance, which was held in May for the student body, and planned the pep convo for the Wheaton basketball game. Coaches Lee Witt and Roy Fowley advised Lettermen's Club.

Conveying points of interest, news, and features was the major goal of the AURORAN, East High's bi-weekly newspaper. SPECULUM Staff Chooses 'Sounds Of '64'

"Quick, someone caption this picture," was a familiar outcry heard in the SPECULUM office as hectic deadline days crept up. The staff met four deadlines, with a fourth of the book due each time. The theme, "Sounds of '64", was selected in September. After the editors had designed layouts, staff members wrote copy, and pictures were planned. When the pictures came back, they were cropped and captioned. Members of the business staff handled the financial aspect of the yearbook. They had to balance the books and obtain subscriptions.

Cooperation is the key in compiling an annual. SPECULUM advisor, Mrs. Jeanette Hess, aids J. Truemper, associate editor; M. Bibly, editor-in-chief, and M. Petersohn, staff member.

The Boys' Club purchased the new basketball bonus light. The function of this light is to let the people know whether or not the player is to get a bonus free throw. A highlight of the year was the planning of an honors booklet which Boys' Club gave to the student body. Inauguration of new officers was held in conjunction with Girls' Club in the cafeteria on January 27.

The main project of the Boys' Club is the operating of the East High parking lot. Each fall parking permits are given to students wishing to use the parking facilities. Students

Radio Club Enjoyed Successful First Year

Radio Club was organized this fall especially for those with a sincere interest in radio communications. The club had fifteen members, including two ham radio operators and four citizen band owners. These citizens bands were used for private, short range communications.

Members set up an amateur radio station and a citizen band station. Activities included visiting various Auroraland companies to obtain ideas for future projects. Radio Club met once a week after school under the guidance of Mr. Charles McCarville, the electronics teacher.

Numerous Projects Undertaken By F.T.A.

Obtaining first-hand experience in classroom teaching was the main accomplishment of the Future Teachers of America. During the second semester, members were able to cadet-teach in schools in District 131. Insight into college life was acquired as F. T. A. members took trips to many colleges and universities. American Education Week supplied the club with projects. Educational place mats were purchased and donated to the Holiday Inn. The second floor show-case held a display centered around the theme, "And gladly would he learn and gladly teach." Supervising activities were Mr. R. Trembacki and Miss D. Constantine

Building Kept Immaculate by Efficient Staff

Sounds echoed throughout the cafeteria during fourth and fifth hours as students crowded to lunch tables. Mrs. Beukelman operated the malt machine and furnished students with cold, thick malts during the four lunch periods. Keeping students well-fed was the job of the eleven cafeteria women. Under the direction of Mrs. Anderson, they prepared well-balanced meals daily. Our athletic teams were also well-fed before traveling to out-of-town games by these women. The system of serving milk in glasses rather than in bottles was adopted. This kept the milk colder longer for the benefit of students in the last lunch hour. Mr. Weber and the eleven other members of East High's custodial staff kept our building in top condition. They also kept the school campus looking clean and well-kept and the building clean and comfortable. Directing traffic in the parking lot at school activities was another of their services.

Sophomores Make Use of East's Library

Absence passes are given by Mrs. Shonk, attendance secretary

Over six hundred sophomores were new to East High. This class of '66, coming from Simmons and Waldo Junior High Schools, quickly adjusted to high school life. . . The bookstore for the first few weeks of school, was the busiest place in the building before and after school as students waited in line for bookkeeping workbooks, paper, pencils, paperback books, and other school supplies. Mrs. Leora Beukelman operated the bookstore. . . The James Powell Library was also a busy place through the year as students did reference work or checked out one of 20,000 books on the library's shelves. Magazines and newspapers were also available for the students' reference or pleasure. The library was often decorated appropriately for various events and special occasions

G. Newcomb, B. Smith, and M. Gargo are in the process of selecting books for their various classes and personal pleasure from East's own bookstore. The bookstore is open to students and faculty before school everyday and on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons throughout the entire school session

The East High Library provides a studious and pleasant atmosphere for individuals to obtain knowledge and to do extra research for class use and personal satisfaction. Each student can use the library as long as he behaves and there is room

One of the many features installed in the cafeteria this year was the vending machines in which cold drinks, various rolls, and different types of sandwiches were placed on sale before and after school for the students and faculty. At the machines are K. Schwartz, J. Narigon, and P. Petersen.

A quiet well balanced lunch is enjoyed by students in the cafeteria. The tables were separated and a more friendly atmosphere prevailed at lunch.

Bob Richards Speaks at Student Assembly

Bob Richards' inspiring speech, given before the student body, was one of the most rewarding assemblies of the year. Reverend Richards advised the student body that they could reach the goal they set if they had the faith and courage to apply themselves. He gave several examples of athletes who overcame great difficulties to gain success. East High's new snack bar quickly became the gathering spot for students before and after school. Breakfasts were supplied for many with a hot roll machine. Other machines provided coffee, hot chocolate, fresh sandwiches, and ice-cold pop. The snack bar was also opened on adult education nights.

One of the most rewarding assemblies of the year was the speech given by Reverend Bob Richards, who was brought to the school by Student Council. Waiting for autographs are A. Renz, D. Schoberlein, and N. Schermerhorn.

"A Tale of Three Cities" was presented on November 15 and 16. This year's cast included approximately two-hundred students. During the weeks before opening night, costumes were made, and the various acts rehearsed. Carrying out the theme, the AURORAN Staff based their settings around the three cities: Chicago, San Francisco, and New Orleans. The first city, Chicago, had a Vaudeville stage with charleston acts, novelty acts, and even a baseball team. San Francisco, the city of wharves and docks, supplied an excellent scene for sailors, portrayed by seniors, and vocal solos. Juniors found themselves in Chinatown. Last, New Orleans with its annual Mardi Gras produced an atmosphere for a queen, twirlers with fire batons, and even the blues. The entire cast joined in the finale singing, "It's a Most Unusual Day" thus completing "A Tale of Three Cities." The AURORAN Staff and Mr. Spence directed the show. The Variety Show was a source of income for the AURORAN.

Rehearsals for several concerts, the first of which was the P. T. A. Christmas Program, made a busy year for the East High Orches tra. As in the past, Mr. Vincent Langlitz di rected the orchestra. A Children's Matinee Concert was given for East Side grade school students in the fourth through sixth grades. The Spring Concert, which was open to the public, was given in March. Time was left for a cultural trip to Chicago to see the mu sical, CAMELOT. Both East High's Orches tra and Concert Band participated in the Fox Valley Music Festival during May and gave concerts for neighboring communities. East High's bands were directed by Mr. G. Ed ward Nelson with the assistance of Mr. Louis Forte. Concerts were given in winter and in spring. Portions of both concerts were given during assemblies for the students and fac ulty. Leading the crowd in yells and creating spirit were big tasks for ten active cheerleaders who supported Tomcat athletics. Planning and participating in pep convos, painting spirit signs, and marching through the halls before school with the pep band were a few activities of both the Jayvee and Varsity squads. Cheerleaders also served at the Dads' Club Ham and Bean Dinner and passed out programs at the regional basketball games. According to the new Upstate Eight rules, only ten cheerleaders were allowed. This quota excluded a mascot. Following a new election system, four seniors and one junior were elected to the varsity squad, while one senior, three juniors, and one sophomore comprised the Junior Varsity squad. Mrs. Carol Viola helped the cheerleaders at their practice sessions as they learned new cheers and reviewed old ones. The cheerleaders received their letters and gold bars at the winter sports awards assembly.

Pom Pom Girls Contributed To School Spirit

For the first time this basketball season, Pom Pom girls performed at home games during half-time. Each class was represented in the Drill Team which performed different routines at each game. Practices were held in the mornings before school during the week preceding the games. The routines were originated by a committee, who taught them to the group. The girls were chosen by Mr. Gerald Dewitt, Mrs. Jeanette Hess, the gym teachers, the cheerleading advisor, and the pom pom advisor, Mrs. Georgia Calvert. Elections for officers were held shortly after the try-out results were announced in October. A captain, co-captain, secretary, and treasurer were chosen to lead the group. The student council paid for the girls' red and black pom poms. Each girl made her basketball uniform, which consisted of a black wrap-around jumper with red lining, and bought her long-sleeved white blouse.

The members also attended a modern dance recital given by the Northern Illinois University Orchesis Club at DeKalb. Orchesis sponsor was Mrs. Avis Lebeck.

Club Project - Improving Library Conditions

Mrs. Glen Thompson and M. Langston, library assistant, found articles of interest as they prepared daily newspapers for the student's use.

Shelving books after school was one of the jobs of Library Club members, M. Langston. The club met on Tuesday in the library after school.

Shelving and processing books, filing the card catalog, discussing books, and arranging an opinion box were some of the duties and projects of the newly organized Library Club. Library club members assisted librarians both during and after school to improve library conditions for the students. They met once every month to plan their socials. Miss Adah Neubauer, head librarian, supervised the girls.

Students of the foreign language department were given the opportunity to increase their knowledge in this field by joining one of the language clubs. The purpose of the clubs was to widen the students' background of the language, the country, its people and their customs. Each club met after school to plan its activities. The German Club spent its time listening to and studying recorded tapes from Germany. This gave the members additional practice in translation and speech. The language laboratory was a valuable aid to the Latin Club, also. They sent three students to the Latin contest at Marmion. The major project of the Spanish Club was a Christmas party. Each class helped plan the party and make a pinata. The advisors for these three newly-organized clubs were the respective teachers of the foreign language department.

Those who were at least 16 years old who had 20 hours of swimming time in the pool, and passed both the water skill test and the written safety test, earned badges. The 20 club members worked for badges at their own rate of speed. Mr. William Gardner guided the Club.

Home Ec. Club Organized By Homemakers

"I finally learned how to knit!" was a familiar cry heard at the newly-formed Home Economics Club. Knitting was one of many skills the members learned under the direction of Mrs. Kathryn Schindel and Miss Naoma Brown, instructors in the Home Economics Department. In the beginning of the year, officers were elected and committees were formed. Meetings were held once a month, and refreshments were served by the club's various committees. Several interesting demonstrations of home-making skills were given for the members. Among them were demonstrations of candle-making and gift wrappings by various experts.

R. Kalstedt threads a sewing machine during a Home Economics meeting. Sewing was a skill enjoyed by the club.

Voice of Knowledge

Classroom walls reverberated throughout the year with the sound of tapping typewriter keys and bubbling chemicals, the grinding of pencil sharpeners and the rustling of papers. Seniors on their way to Eng. Lit. classes nervously recited, "Whan that Aprille with his shoures soote". . . "The shot heard 'round the world" rang in juniors' ears as the underclassmen listened intently in American History classes

"Friends, Romans, countrymen" resounded in sophomore English classes as the newcomers studied Julius Caesar. Strains of "Wave the Flag" floated through open windows as East's marching band practiced its parade formations. The whir of a film projector, the buzz of a power saw, and the soft cadence of a teacher's voice answering students' questions or explaining new concepts were some of the sounds that echoed through the corridors of East in '64.

East High Welcomes New Administration

Our new principal, Mr. Gerald DeWitt, came from North Central High School in Indianapolis, Indiana. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from Butler University. Mr. Ewald Metzger was the assistant principal at C. W. Simmons Junior High. He received his B.S. and M.S. from Northern Illinois University. Mr. Raymond Baxter, another assistant, received his B.S. from Carthage College and his M.S. from Western Illinois University.

Mr. Gerald DeWitt, in his first year as principal has instituted many new and better changes. He came to us from Indiana.

Mr. Ewald Metzger, assistant principal, experienced his first year at East as the attendance officer and the sponsor of the Boys' Club.

New to East is Mr. Ray Baxter, who assists Mr. DeWitt in supervision of school-owned facilities.

Fair Concluded Year

The science department offered a variety of both basic and advanced studies in biology, chemistry, and physics. First-year biology students used a new text on a trial basis. This modern approach to biology included more chemistry. An advanced course in physics was introduced. It provided a more intense study of physics through electricity, thus giving the interested student an opportunity to increase his knowledge in this field. Mr. Charles E. Tripp, new to the science department this year, specialized in first-year physics. He and the other instructors of this department assisted students with projects which were entered in the Annual Aurora Foundation Science Fair. The Fair enabled these students to demonstrate their ability in the fascinating field of science.

Ability Groups and New Courses in Social

Experimenting in closed circuit television, the Social Studies department offered a change for juniors taking American History. Three classes meeting third hour participated in the one-day experiment. They were able to see and hear Mr. Davis and Mr. Jennings in their regular classrooms. World Cultures, a course dealing with world history by cultural areas, was added to the curriculum at a level for sophomores

American Government and economics were combined into a one-year course that was required of all seniors. Grouping according to ability enabled each student to learn the most from this course. Paperbacks were purchased for use in one group in both American Government and economics. Document books were also purchased for use in American History. A third group had completely new paperbound pamphlets.

J. Mikus demonstrates talent to other members of Mr. Campbell's second year Spanish class. This class meets every week day to learn the language and culture of the Spanish Striving for the mastery of a foreign language, students studied German, Latin, or Spanish. New to the staff were Mr. Colin Campbell and Mr. Gerald Lubshina, Spanish and Latin teachers respectively. Audio-lingual materials were used in the first two years of German and Spanish classes. Drills from these materials were recorded in the laboratory. Latin classes did not use the laboratory because of the nature of their text. Advanced work was available in German only. Studies were offered on both third and fourth year levels. Third year students studied reading and grammar skills, while the fourth year level read important German literature and practiced their German composition.

Juniors In Journalism Prepared For Staffs

While Miss Mary Alice Prindle lectured to approximately eighty-five college bound seniors, other English Literature students worked in groups of approximately sixteen with their small group teachers. These groups rotated weekly. Second semester consisted of English grammar and composition. The same schedule continued with Mr. Ralph Blackman conducting the lectures. Reading laboratory, language, speech, and literature prepared the sophomores for their remaining years at East. Each one of these four phases of English was studied and practiced for one quarter. At intervals these English teachers exchanged Sophomore Classes

Math Department Offers Variety of Courses

T. Phillips and W. Hawkinson observe M. Ratz as he draws an angle on the globe. The globe has aided students in the past year. Teachers have found students take great interest in it

Constructing triangles and setting up proofs were among skills acquired by sophomores in Geometry I and II. Juniors pondered equations and worked with logarithms in their second year algebra classes under the direction of Mr. Edward Backe and Mr. Donald Case. An advanced course in mathematics was available to seniors who wished to continue the pursuit of mathematics in greater detail. Mr. Forrest Buckler instructed the Senior Math classes. College-bound seniors who successfully completed the one-year course in Senior Math received five hours of college credit in mathematics. Miss Donna Constantine, Mr. C. J. Robert, and Mr. Clarence Connaway completed the teaching staff of this department.

In Miss Constantine's Plane Geometry class, construction plays an important part in the visualization and proof of theorems. Rulers, protractors and compasses are used

The Business Education teachers are Mr. Paul Schindwein, and Miss Elaine Uthe. They are the co-ordinators for the D.E. and O.O. programs.

Learning the preliminary principles and methods of recording transactions and preparing financial statements are the students of Miss Uthe's first period Bookkeeping Class.

S. Rydquist, a member of Mr. Spurlock's third hour typing class, is prepared to begin a one minute speed and accuracy timing test. These tests are given frequently during the semester.

Miss Getrude Pittz, Mr. F. M. Spurlock, department head Mrs. Elizabeth McCormick, and Miss Eleanor Dollins

Typing Helpful to College Bound Students

The major objective of the business education department was to acquaint students with information concerning careers in business. It offered the opportunity for business-minded students to develop proficiency in the vocational courses. Typing I provided each student with enough skill to do all his own personal typing, while the second semester course dealt with filling out forms, typing business letters, and addressing envelopes. Two new half-hour courses with full credit given, Rapid Writing and Academic Typing, were adopted this year. These classes were opened to college bound juniors and seniors only. Office Occupations provided advanced bookkeeping students with first-hand experience. Juniors and seniors, who participated in the Distributive Education program, spent fifteen or more hours per week working. General Business, Consumer Buying, Shorthand, and Business Law were also offered

J. Boudreau and V. Stuart display skill in the use of adding machines during a session of their office practice class. Students learn various types of office work

Fine Arts Department Had Active Year

The drama department of East High worked on the many technical aspects of drama. Working behind stage on lighting and props, the students assisted in the majority of the school stage productions. They aided the spring musical by painting scenery. In the display case by the art rooms, the art work of a different, well-known artist was shown about every two months. Along the wall by the art room, students' own work was displayed for viewing by interested students. Class projects ranged from silkscreening and graphic story illustrations to oil painting, sculpturing, and weaving. The photography department took movies of all the athletic events. Approximately 10,000 feet of film was used on East High's athletic events alone. Color slides were also taken of all major stage productions. The beginning students completed ten assignments, consisting of five pictures taken indoors and five pictures taken out-of-doors. Stage-craft classes aided in performances with lighting effects and stage sets.

Electricity, Woodwork, And Printing Helps

Under the direction of Mr. Gordon Simonson, the Industrial Arts Home Economics Department, combined for the first time this year, received additional equipment to aid in the workshops. Included in this equipment were two cylindrical grinders and a lathe for the machine shop, a proof press for the print shop, and a new welder and spinning lathe for the metal shop. East's print shop printed various programs for school sponsored events. Blueprint reading, Drafting Electricity, Electronics and Woodwork were offered by this department.

Applying their knowledge of electricity, these two boys work diligently in Electric Shop on one of many special class projects.

J. Kammes and J. Graver demonstrate the technique of welding a box, one of the various techniques taught in Mr. E. Amyx's metals class.

Mr. Donald P. Govoni, Mr. Charles McCarville, Mr. Gordon Simonson, Chairman of the Department; Mr. Daniel H. Einhorn, and Mr. Richard E. Johnston are teachers of Industrial Arts.

Really aim and fire! Do you suppose any one of us has a mark? Archery is just one of the many units of sports enjoyed by the girls.

The girls learned to use many new types of sports equipment. Good instruction enabled them to learn the skills well enough to play.

Girls Gym Classes Have Classroom Study

Diving into the swimming pool, balancing on the parallel bars, shooting baskets, playing volleyball, batting baseballs, and various other activities kept the girls in the Physical Education Program very busy. Senior girls were not required to take gym this year. Junior Leaders learned how to care for equipment, how to lead exercises, and how to referee sports. Senior Leaders put to practical use the skills they had learned as juniors. First Aid was taught to junior girls, while sophomores learned the classroom phase of Driver's Education.

Senior leader K. Lawson leads his class in push-ups as they build on themselves for physical fitness testing. These tests are given twice a year to each gym class. East High has received excellent ratings in the physical fitness tests for many previous years.

Boys Classes Take Physical Fitness Tests

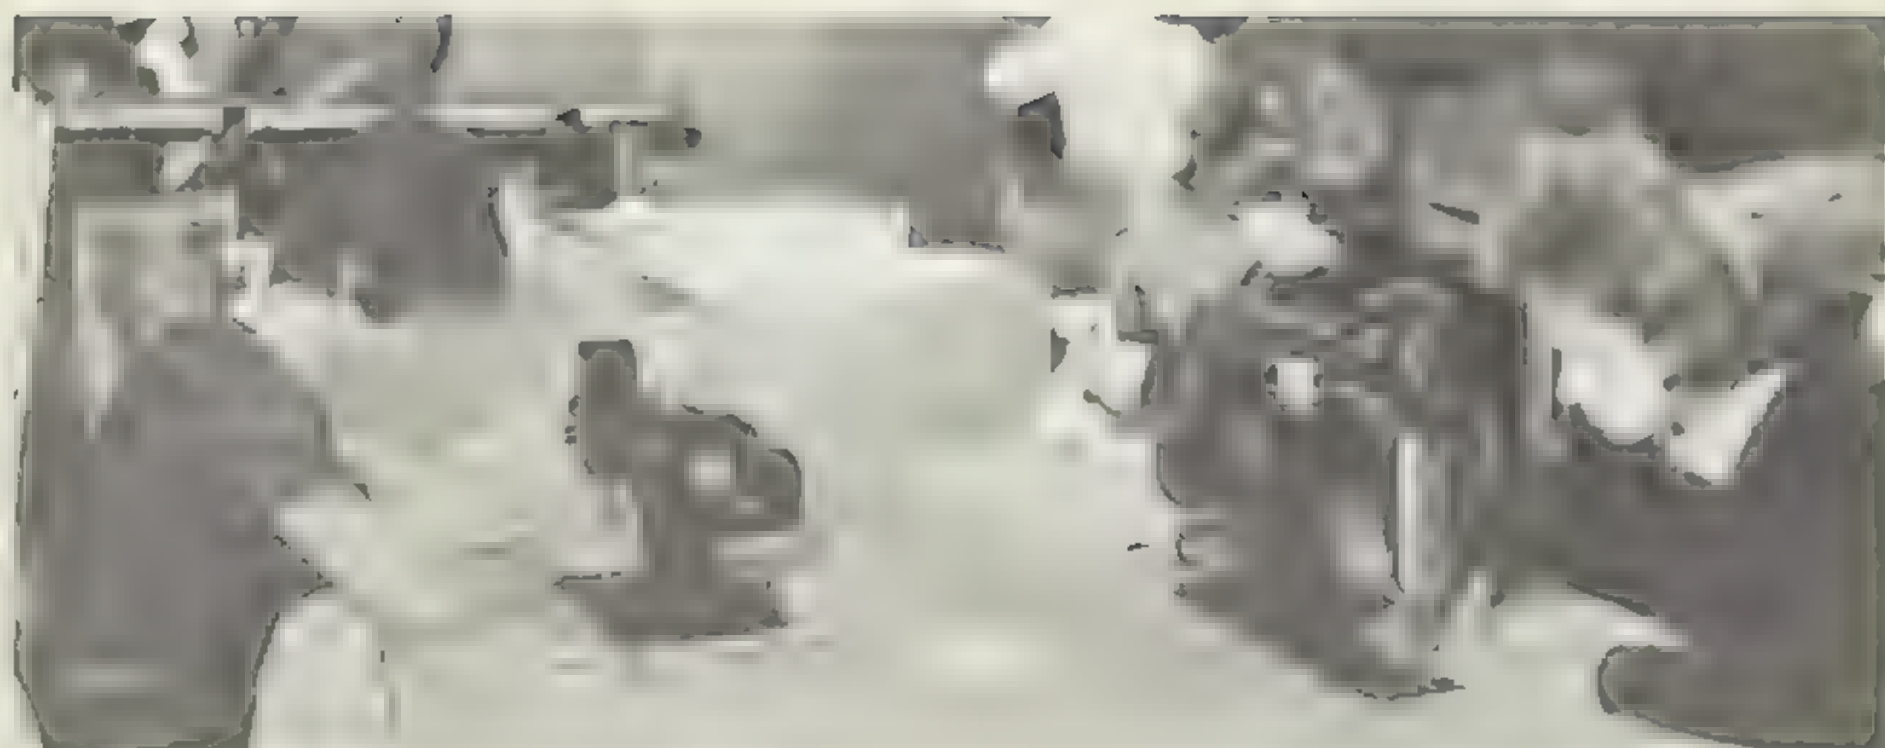

Physical Education courses, under the guidance of Mr. Joe Maze, helped to insure sufficient exercise for East's boys. Seniors were not required to participate in the P.E. program. The various activities were divided into three-week periods. The nation-wide physical fitness tests were given twice in order to show the student's achievement. The results indicated the percentile in which East stood according to its physical prowess, and also how each individual student ranked with the average national student and the average East High P.E. student.

The boys in Mr. Hughes gym class seem to find the pool area a free and relaxing place to spend their class period while they are taught various dives and the basic swimming skill.

Girls may be found sewing together various sleeping garments as an introductory project in Clothing I. This is required for any advanced course.

Varying Styles Studied in Clothing Classes

Pattern study, threading, blocking hems, and under-stitching were a few of the skills taught in Clothing I. Robes, blouses, and one selected project were articles made in this course. In Clothing II, students had the opportunity to make a skirt, a weskit, and a simple dress. Tailoring a suit and a coat were important parts of the one semester course of Tailoring. Advanced Dressmaking provided experience in using advanced patterns and fabrics. Students in this course studied fashions in relation to influencing factors and changing styles. The projects made were a date dress, a party dress, and one other selected project of their choice.

Mrs. Georgiana Calvert, Miss Naoma Brown, and Mrs. Kathryn R. Schindel are the teachers of Home Economics at East.

Garments are almost ready to wear as C. King, D. Huntley, Y. Valdez, and M. Johnson finish suits made in tailoring.

Preparation and Serving Studied in Foods

Home nursing teaches practical techniques needed in the home. Shown are J. Leypold, L. Post, W. K. Berman, L. Blair.

Providing a basic idea of the foods necessary for a well-balanced diet was an important part of Foods I. Students in Foods II learned the proper use of dishes, glassware, and flatware. Delicacies for special occasions, such as picnics, teas, buffets, and holidays, were studied in Foods III. Advanced study of meal planning, serving, and preparation constituted Foods IV. Home Nursing students learned thirty-nine basic nursing skills plus child care through the age of six years. Home Living classes studied the various phases of home problems that were not covered in Foods, Clothing or Home Nursing.

E. Andrews and B. Evinger learn how to set a table with the proper equipment in Home Living, a course in the Home Economics Department at East.

M. M. Johnson sorts ingredients from a recipe she is reading in Mrs. Schindler's class. S. Scott gives her suggestions from a Betty Crocker cookbook, while S. Scott helps by measuring the necessary ingredients. Students in Foods I classes are taught the correct measurements.

Counseling and Guidance Offered Students

Guidance was one of East High's many and varied services for the student. With the 200 additional students this year, the counselors found themselves even busier than last year. Students met with their assigned counselor at least two times during the school year. They discussed matters such as course selections, schedule changes, and requirements for various colleges. To further develop their program, the counselors tried more group guidance this year. The department also administered test for intelligence, aptitude, and achievement; then they interpreted the results.

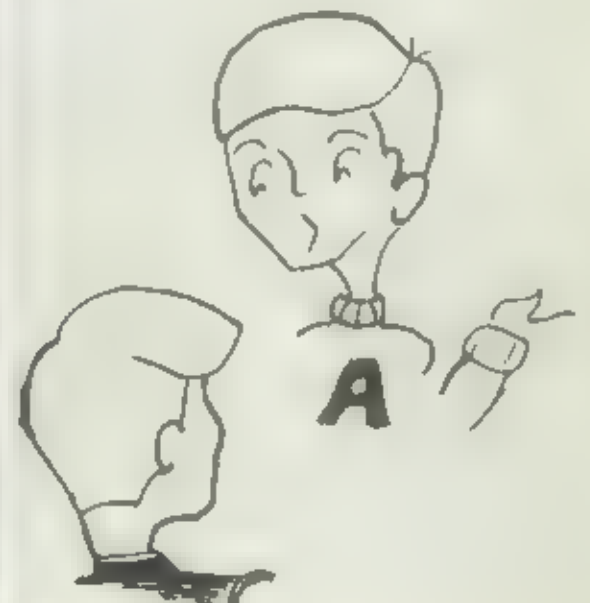

Mrs. Mary H. Krause, Mr. Kenneth A. Paulson, and Mr. C. J. Robert meet to discuss some of the many problems encountered by the Guidance Office.

Mr. Inman, the head of East High's guidance department, attended Columbia University Teachers' College for undergraduate work in the social studies department.

Mr. George Woolley and Miss Ruth E. Brinkman are two of East High's exceptional counselors, whose main objective is to help the student.

Mrs. H. Stork, Miss M. Comer, Mrs. E. Thompson, Mrs. J. Devine, Mrs. M. Murtick and Mrs. G. Becker attend to duties in a routine day at the East High office. Secretaries assist the administration in controlling and keeping student records and handling attendance.

Librarians Evaluate Books, Assist Students

Throughout the school year, the library was a busy place. Miss A. Neubauer, librarian, and her assistant, Mrs. G. Thompson, aided students in finding study materials. They also helped by having all books and information on the proper shelves. Miss G. Matteson, the school nurse, taught Home Nursing, in addition to making attendance calls, administering first aid to injured students, and also sponsoring Future Nurses of America. Assisting the administration were six secretaries who were in charge of attendance, adult education classes, and students' records.

Miss Grace Matteson, East High nurse, is shown on the phone in her office. She is also excusing a sick student, one of her many duties.

Mrs. M. Thompson and Mrs. A. Neubauer are East High's librarians. Students who come to the library find the ladies checking out books.

Congenial Tones

Friendly chatter could be heard as students congregated at the snack bar for a cup of hot chocolate or a roll. Under discussion was a number of subjects as varied as the different students and their interests. Seniors could be heard discussing colleges and entrance requirements or hoped-for future jobs. Juniors' conversation centered on the various clubs and organizations they anticipated presiding over the following year. Sophomores were preoccupied with their discovery of the many new opportunities opened to them at East. They talked about the wide variety of subjects available, the team standings, clubs recently joined, and the fun of high school life. The newcomers' excitement over their class rings animated the conversation. Banging lockers. . .laughter. . .singing on Pep Club buses. . .the sounds of the student body mingled together to comprise the sounds of '64.

Making plans for graduation and the necessary committees was the job of the senior class officers. The senior class officers for 1963-64 were J. Rauscher, Vice-President; P. Beyke,

Secretary-Treasurer; and D. Kreitz, President. They met with Mr. Woolley, advisor, to discuss senior plans

Tomorrow, And Tomorrow, And Tomorrow . .

Dreams of senior activities and graduation finally became a reality for the class that entered East High as freshmen in 1960. The homecoming queen and her court were elected from the Class of '64. Graduation seemed just around the corner as seniors were measured for their caps and gowns. As Christmas approached, upperclassmen compared, signed, and traded their senior pictures. Seventh semester soon came to a close and final class rank was compiled. Climaxing the social aspect of their high school career, seniors attended the senior prom and the senior banquet. They showed a more serious side during the Class Day assembly and baccalaureate services. To the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance", seniors received their diplomas from Mr. Edward Fauth, president of the Board of Education

Adding to the Christmas spirit is the SPECULUM office door, which was decorated by the staff for the holiday

Juniors Entered School Float Competition

N. Ehrhart accepts first place trophy for the Junior Class float, "We'll Li-On Them", from Junior Class President F. Briggs during Homecoming halftime

Five hundred and eighty-four juniors began a busy year when they returned to school in September with high hopes and sharpened pencils. They returned eager and confident, enthusiastically meeting the challenges. Preparation for future careers was a major factor in their activity-crammed year. Pamphlets on careers were available to aid them in choosing a profession. College conferences were attended and scholarship tests were taken by those students interested in obtaining a college education. Other students began preparing for careers in such things as business, industry, and homemaking. The Junior Class won the first place trophy for their homecoming float "We'll Li-On Them." Tentative class rank was received in March. Junior candidates campaigned for various club offices with colorful posters and convincing speeches. They completed their busy year by selecting their class colors and flower and electing their Senior Class officers. Jayvee teams were especially important this year as East joined the newly formed Upstate Eight Conference.

Brightly colored campaign posters urged students to vote in the December elections for Girls' Club, Boys' Club, and Student Council officers. Candidates gave their speeches in an assembly the day before campaigning began. This enabled students to link persons and their posters.

Sophomores Choose Officers In The Spring

Approximately 600 confused and bewildered sophomores entered East High this fall. Orientation Day, a program planned by the counselors, was held in late August to acquaint students with regular school procedures. Speakers at this program included Mr. Gerald De Witt and Dr. Norman S. Green. In addition, the presidents of Student Council, Girls' Club, and Boys' Club were introduced. Upperclassmen helped familiarize the sophomores with East by acting as guides for a tour of the building. A copy of the ENLIGHTNER, a booklet which contained information about the length of class periods, the fees for book rental and materials, and East's dress code, was given to each student to further acquaint him with the school. Maps of the floor plan of the building were available to students who desired them. In the spring, the Class of '66 elected their junior class officers and selected their class rings.

Battle Cries

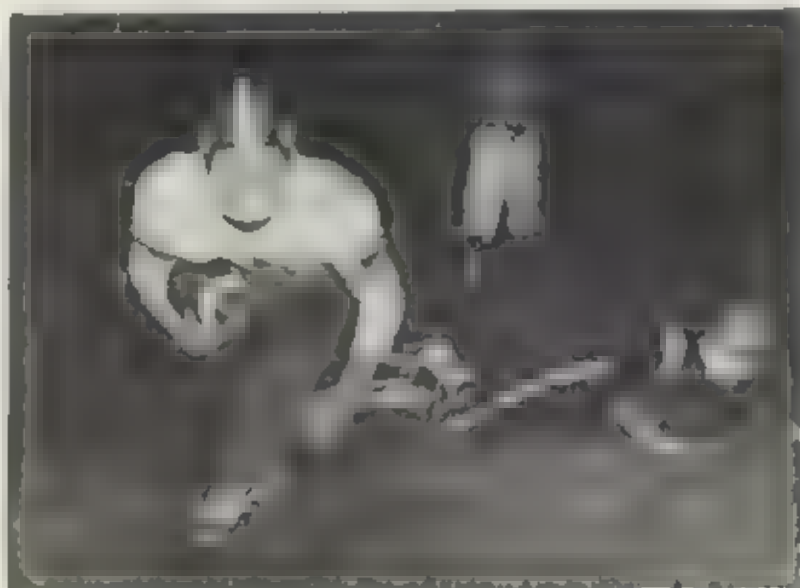

Shrill whistles blowing. . .the crack of a ball and bat coming in contact. . .splashing water as a swimming meet commences. . .the bang of a starting gun. . .these sounds vibrated through the tense atmosphere as Tomcat fans expectantly awaited the outcome of a sports event. East High participated in a new conference, the Upstate Eight, organized for the first time in the '63-'64 season. Both varsity and junior-varsity teams gave us reason to be proud as they captured the Upstate Eight football championship with perfect records. Cross-country harriers, tankers, and matmen exhibited their utmost efforts to show that "East is Best." As spring came, the cindermen engaged in track and field events, while our tennis, golf, and baseball teams also practiced diligently to uphold the tradition of the red and black. Enthusiastic voices cheering "Go you Tomcats" added color to the sounds of '64

Gridmen Go Undefeated; Capture

"Thunder" was the battle cry of the Varsity football squad as they emerged undefeated for the first time since 1938. After impressive victories in pre-season contests they rolled over even foe in their path during conference play. The tomcats captured the Upstate Eight title in '63, the first year of the newly created conference. Coach Del Dufrain and his assistants, Richard Bolen and Arthur Court, emphasized charging, tackling and blocking techniques during the daily after school practices. Seven senior football players were named on the All-Conference team. These were: Bob Court, Jim Davis, Ralph Galloway, Jack Hughes, Mike Leonard, Mike Murphy, and Bill Schindel. Schindel and Hughes also won positions on the All-State squad. John Kewenig was elected captain for the '64" squad

East Beats West In Regional Tourney

Showing great desire, hustle and spirit, but hurt by their lack of height, the Tomcats finished the basketball season with a 6 win 16 loss record. The Tomcats advanced to the finals of the West-Aurora Regional tournament where they were edged out by Naperville. Coach Lee Witt instituted a new system of honoring players for good performances in games. If a player had the best field goal percentage, best free throw percentage, most recoveries or most rebounds, he received a star. Greg Hopkins, who was voted to a place on the all-conference team, led the team in scoring and also in most rebounds. Returning lettermen will be Mike Davis, Tom Goeltz, Doug Frantz and John Lacart for the 64-65 season, Don Krietz captained the '63-'64 Varsity squad.

The Cats' coach, Mr. Dick Bolen, had several returning lettermen for the 1964 squad.
